Sometimes, playing games or doing other activities online can make you frustrated or mad. It's important to know when you need to take a break and do something else.

what should you share?

When you post something online, it can be seen by and shared with a lot of people – sometimes people you don't know or trust.

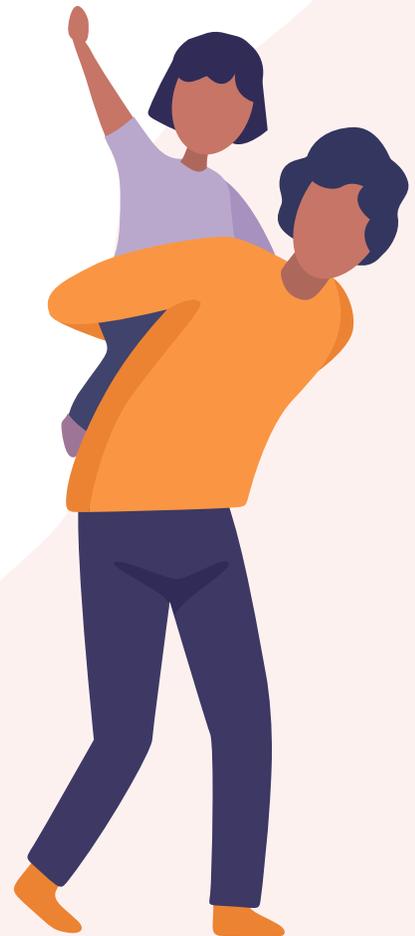

Things that you would not share with everyone should not be posted online. Talk to your mom or dad about what is OK to share.

WHAT KINDS OF INFORMATION WOULD YOU SHARE WITH...

EVERYONE (your whole school or the town you live in)

SOME PEOPLE (teachers, friends and other people you trust)

CLOSE FRIENDS (or even a diary)

MEDIA USE SAFETY

Have your child use technology in a family space so you can see what they are doing.

Keep the lines of communication open so your child is willing to tell you if they experience something online that makes them uncomfortable.

Teach your kids that the internet poses dangers, just like the real world.

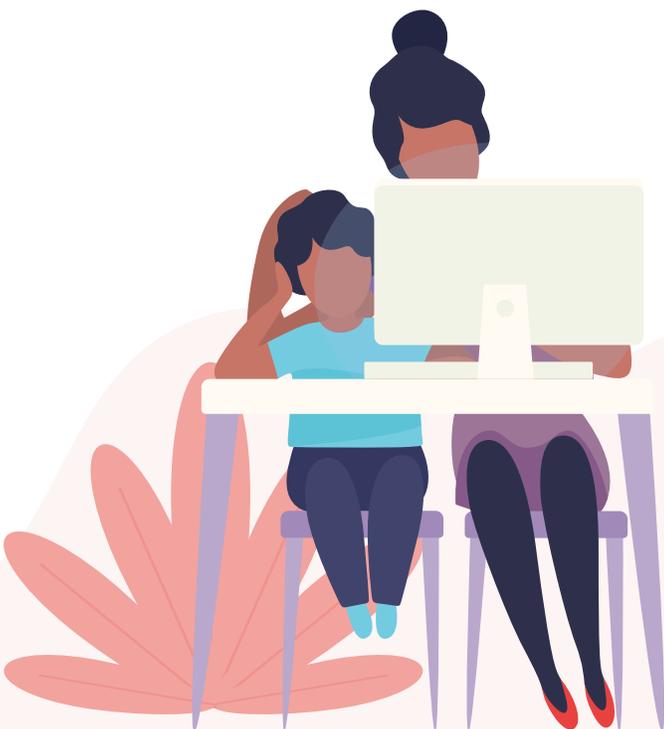

Make sure privacy settings are set to the highest level.

IF YOUR CHILD SEES SOMEONE WHO IS BEING CYBERBULLIED, TELL THEM TO:

- Not forward embarrassing photos or messages.
- Not comment on insulting or harassing posts.
- Report any instances of cyberbullying to a trusted adult.
- Support the victim by being a good friend and showing the cyberbullies they won't join in.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BEING CYBERBULLIED:

- Encourage your child not to respond to or forward cyberbullying messages.
- Record the dates, times, and descriptions of instances when cyberbullying has occurred. Save and print screenshots, emails, and text messages. Use this evidence to report cyberbullying to web and cell phone service providers.
- Block the person who is cyberbullying. Change phone numbers if bullying is occurring through phone or text.
- Get your child's school involved and learn about their policies. Inform law enforcement and report details if you feel something illegal has occurred.

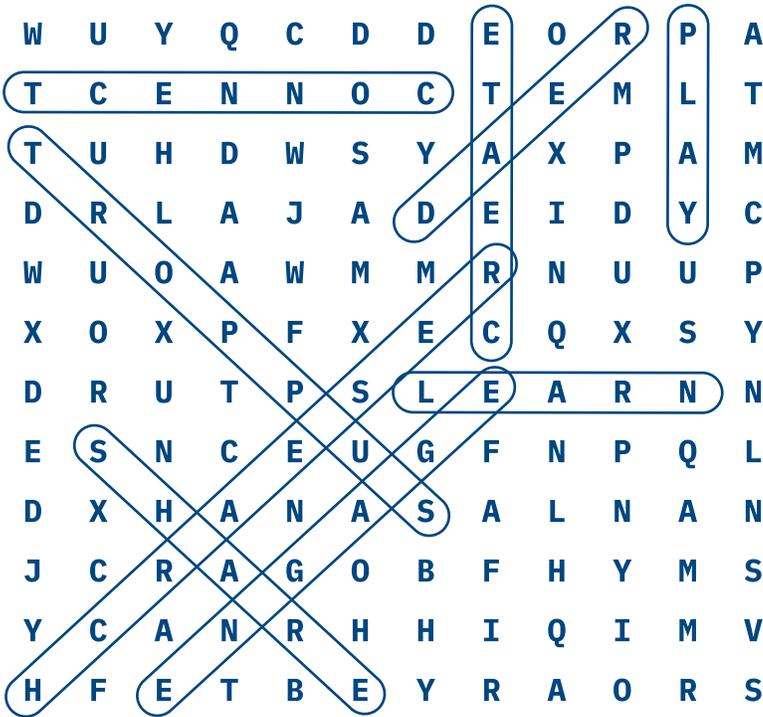

Watch for cyberbullying

Cyberbullying can affect the social, emotional, and physical health of a child.
